HOW WE USE COOKIES

A cookie is a small file which asks permission to be placed on your computer's hard drive. Once you agree, the file is added and the cookie helps analyse web traffic or lets you know when you visit a particular site. Cookies allow web applications to respond to you as an individual. The web application can tailor its operations to your needs, likes and dislikes by gathering and remembering information about your preferences.

We use traffic log cookies to identify which pages are being used. This helps us analyse data about web page traffic and improve our website in order to tailor it to customer needs. We only use this information for statistical analysis purposes and then the data is removed from the system.

The cookies used on this website have different tasks:

Necessary Cookies: these cookies are needed to allow the website to work properly. They don't collect any personal data.

Functionality Cookies: these cookies are used to memorise your navigation choices for instance. They collect data anonymously and can't share them with other services.

Analytics Cookies: We use Google Analytics to track the audience of the website. You can read more about Google Analytics' own privacy policy here.

Security Cookies: We also use security cookies to maintain the security of the website and avoid any attack against our server.

Third Parties: Sometimes we may rely on third parties services (Google Maps, Youtube, Facebook). These services might use cookies for their own usage. We don't have any access to these data.

Overall, cookies help us provide you with a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages you find useful and which you do not. A cookie in no way gives us access to your computer or any information about you, other than the data you choose to share with us.

You can choose to accept or decline cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser settings to decline cookies if you prefer. This may prevent you from taking full advantage of the website.

We take your privacy very seriously and comply with the recent UK and EU law on handling cookies and provide (you) the user with means to remove such cookies or prevent your computer from accepting them in the future.
